INT MUSEUM DAY
Anton Deimel is examining VAT 12597 in the Vorderasiatisches Museum Berlin in the early ’1920s – he immediately spots the EDEN and CREATE signs at the beginning of the tablet.
This is exactly what he was trained at the Pontifical Institute in Rome to watch out for.
CLOSEUP of a ‘then’ still pretty well-preserved EDEN CREATION frame.

First things first. We see him beginning to sketch out all the frames for his book.
He does the first 5 frames. Stops at the EDEN CREATION frame.

He screws up the note paper and chucks it in the waste basket.

He flips the tablet and begins recording backwards so that anyone perusing his book will see it's just about the work of an overseer – a mere 'Administrative' tablet. (Anyway, he will bury it in the boring lexical tablets section.)
He gets to the last column and the all-important EDEN Creation frame, we see him finish it in flurry by cross-hatching out the CREATION signs area completely.

Then we see him stop for a moment, pats his forefinger on his lips (he's not sure of something).
Abruptly, he also crosses out the ME sign, now realizing that leaving KA + ME would then indicate EME language, making the frame's intent a little too clear for comfort. (But he stupidly leaves the telltale '+' sign.)
He finishes the last frame. There. Done. He smiles smugly to himself.

Now what to do with the tablet, itself. That EDEN CREATION section. He checks to make sure no one is looking. First, with the magical spatula he carries for just such a precision operation, he defaces the EDEN sign. Then he starts a crack around that whole section and carefully lifts it up a bit , especially at the end of the EDEN sign.
If it should ever be handled again in that area, that thin shard will likely crumble to pieces.

Deimel is finished, he approaches the curator holding out the tablet. Then just as he is about to pass it to the curator he pretends to stumble.
In SLOW MOTION we see the tablet rotate in the air.
Just as it's about to crash to the floor the curator dives and miraculously catches it.

CURATOR
(In great relief)
Phew! That was close.
Just a crack opening up.
I'll put some glue in to make sure it doesn't get worse.
I won't let such an old and well preserved tablet out of my sight again.
Good day, Herr Deimel.

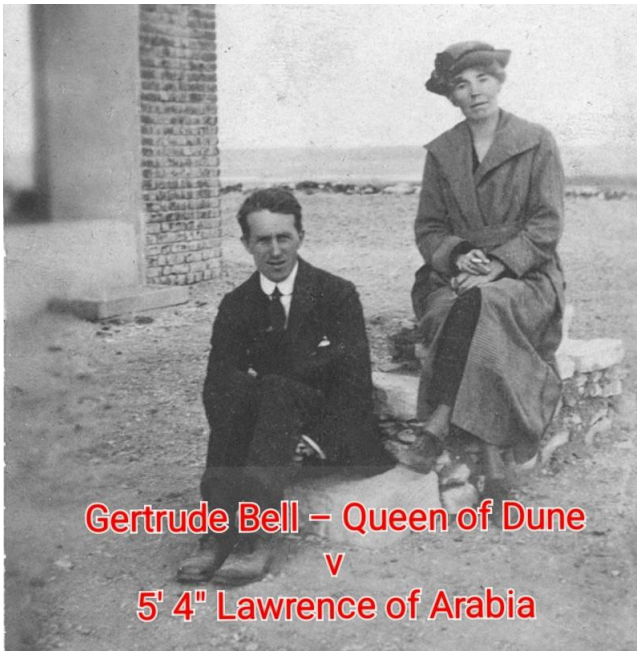
She deems the Dunes the sweetest of friends, and travels on where travels above her the Mother of all the clustered stars – Ta'abbata Sharran » The Desert and the Sown '1907



'Ned' (as he was known) Lawrence (a pseudonym, his father was Thomas Chapman) asked Gertrude Bell for her opinion of his self-promo book, she gave it a pass, "all but the libelous, untruthful description of yourself".

Early the next morning ('22) Gertrude Bell left for Ur. She was devoting more of her time now to her new museum, collecting ancient objects that gave credence to her dreams for a grand Iraq. The more proof she had of the achievements of the Sumerians, the more she could substantiate her claims that the country would return to its former greatness.

Archaeology meant tedious work, with hours spent in the broiling sun supervising the digs, examining even the most minuscule finds, but the seminal history of this land had captured her imagination. With the digging season at its end, she had, as Honorary Director of Antiquities, first rights to any treasures for the national museum.

The process of dividing the finds began with the toss of a rupee, and Gertrude won a scarab, worth a thousand pounds. Among the larger pieces, she allotted the bronzes to the archaeologist Leonard Woolley but kept for herself an important bronze milking scene encapsulating life in Sumer.

I haven't told you about the floods for a long time. The Euphrates, after threatening to cover the country up to the embankment of the Hillah railway, thought better of it. The Tigris is definitely going down, but one of the deputies told me the other day that the cellars of his house in the middle of Bagdad, a good deal below the river level, are 4ft. deep in water...

Gertrude Bell 2vi26

like to finish this job first--indeed, I feel that I must finish it, there being no one else. But it is too lonely, my existence here; one can't go on for ever being alone. At least, I don't feel I can... ...

Gertrude Bell 17vi23

It has been extremely mild for Bagdad, rarely over a hundred and the nights quite cold; but after dinner my house is stuffy and I am glad when it is time to go to bed on the roof. We are going to begin swimming which is the only agreeable form of exercise at this time of year...

I am being much enthralled by the study of seals. In the scenes of worship and domestic life depicted on those tiny cylinders I constantly find pots and things which I have actually got in the Museum. Then I suddenly place them with a much greater sense of reality. just as I placed the mace heads in the shrine of Bur Sin--I have found them on quantities of seals standing in the shrines of other gods. That is rather thrilling, isn't it...

Our Work Officially Archived by National Library

Subject: Peter Hogan Website – 2nd request for permission to archive website
From: “Helen Halfpenny” hhalfpen@sl.nsw.gov.au
Date: Thu, 07 Oct 2004

Dear Mr Hogan,
On 7/9/2004 I sent the attached email message seeking permission to include Peter Hogan website in the PANDORA Archive, the Australian national collection of online publications…
The State Library of NSW is committed to preserving selected electronic publications and websites of lasting cultural value for long-term access by the Australian community. Only a relatively small number of online publications are assessed as being significant enough for PANDORA and we would be grateful if you would allow us to include yours…
…There are some benefits to you as a publisher in having your publication archived by the Library. If you grant us a copyright licence, the necessary preservation action will be undertaken to keep your publication accessible as hardware and software changes over time. The Library will catalogue your publication and add the record to the National Bibliographic Database (a database of catalogue records shared by over 1,100 Australian libraries), as well as to our own online catalogue. This will increase awareness of your publication among researchers using libraries…
Yours sincerely
Helen Halfpenny,
Senior Library Technician,

Mugsar Founder

How many $200k tenured prof.'s have comparable academia edu internet footprint as the Mugsar Founder – a poignant example:

The critical Gallipoli letter we unearthed and sent to Rupert Murdoch at his News Corp HQ in New York for his 80th birthday in '2011 (with a painting by a then 10yo Tara, along with copies of correspondence we had with Rupert's mother Dame Elisabeth, all to help get it past mailroom screening).

This amazing October 2, '1915 letter was from Prime Minister Asquith to Major Dawnay, senior officer of Gen. Hamilton, Gallipoli, about Keith Murdoch, Rupert's father, it confirmed beyond doubt for any skeptics that Keith really did get our boys {actually they were called Billjim, not Anzacs in those days} out of Gallipoli.

This letter intrinsically legitimizes how the Murdoch family subsequently became rich. Rupert of course, immediately realized all this and so our unearthing became the impetus for him to promptly order the setting up of the Australian Media Hall of Fame shortly after in '2011, with Keith as inaugural inductee {Lachlan gave the acceptance speech at the dinner in Melbourne).

That letter (with our names added in the top intro caption, but that inadvertently was the only thanks we got – no small donation to the development of our projects, zilch!) was then featured on Keith's HofF page:

My dear Dawnay

Here at last your Bridge debt.

On reflection, I think it better not to trouble Sir Ian Hamilton with the text of the Australian letter, of which I spoke to you.

It is largely composed of gossip and second-hand statements, and the antecedents of the writer are not such to command much confidence.

It may, however, do mischief in Australia, and there are certain specific points upon which we shall no doubt ask Sir I. Hamilton for explanatiion & comment.
